Scholarship Evaluation: Competently written and edited history of the Shanghai labor movement from 12 May 1940 to end of 1949

Review: A detailed account of the Shanghai labor movement immediately following "liberation," and of the organization and expansion of unions in this key city. Gives statistical tables on union membership in unionized factories, women workers, and labor disputes and a list of unions organized or reorganized in 1949, together with names of the officers.
 Describes labor movements achievements in protecting property during the Communist take-over; the restoration of production; the participation of labor in political affairs, in patriotic movements, in nationwide labor conferences, and in the educational and social programs of Shanghai. Includes important labor laws and decrees of the Central Government, and statements by labor and government officials.
